

4-4-1 Plans Are Presented; Revised Policies Announced

By SANDY MOELLER

(Editor's note: In the next few weeks junior Sandy Moeller will present a series of articles explaining the 4-4-1 plan. She is currently a member of the Educational Policies Committee.)

Questions about the 4-4-1 plan are becoming more and more important to us as this last semester under the old system progresses.

The faculty, of course, carries the greater part of the burden of forming the policies that govern the 4-4-1 program.

Chief steering committee for the faculty is the Educational Policies Committee, composed of five faculty members and myself, and chaired by Mahlon H. Hellerich, Dean of Faculty.

This committee is responsible for presenting to the faculty plans concerning every aspect of the 4-4-1 program. It is at this point, in particular, that the students' opinions and ideas must be expressed.

This is basically how the 4-4-1 program works.

Year Has 3 Terms

The school year, rather than being divided into two equal semesters, is divided into a fall term, a winter term and a May term. The fall term of about four months will end just before Christmas vacation.

The winter term will begin in early January and continue through April. The May term will consist of one month. Four courses are considered the normal academic load for each of the four-month terms. One may be taken during the May term.

Four terms of a course combining physical education and health education will be required. These four terms will carry the weight of one regular course when completed.

37 Courses Taken In 4 Years

Thus it will be possible to take a total of 37 courses in four years here at Wartburg (nine courses each year plus physical education). A total of 36 courses are required for graduation.

These 36 courses must include four May term courses. A student will also be required to have completed a course in independent study and research in his major field before graduation.

As was mentioned before, four courses in each of the four-month terms are considered a normal academic load.

Students having a cumulative average of 4.0 may, however, carry an extra course in either or both terms upon the recommendation of his academic advisor and the approval of the dean of the faculty.

Can't Fit In Double Majors

Those underclassmen who were planning on double majors will see that it may be difficult to fit in all the required courses, unless the two fields overlap considerably.

Future students at Wartburg will, however, have greater opportunity to take tests allowing them to pass out of certain required courses.

A basic change that you have probably already noticed is that there is no mention of semester hours. All credit is based on the "course."

Distribution requirements (those subjects that must be taken by all students) and majors are listed in terms of so many "courses" in a certain field.

The value of a course in terms of our present semester hours system has been set at approximately 3.5 semester hours.

This is the basic outline of the 4-4-1 program. Next week I will discuss the distribution requirements and the transition from the semester plan to the 4-4-1.

Any questions, ideas or criticisms are welcome; and I will try to print them in this column. They can be sent to Box 1050.

Senate Reorganization Plan Receives Senator's Sanction

By WAYNE LEA

A movement to reorganize the student government is rapidly gaining momentum.

Latest to join the crusade is sophomore senator, Terry Sexton, who has endorsed the plan proposed last week by Men's Coordinating Board Chairman Emile Zola and senator Lu Ahrens.

"Under the present system, senate is ineffective," said Sexton. "I endorse the structure of the system proposed by Ahrens and Zola."

Under this plan, senate would consist of two bodies--"men's senate" and "women's senate." Each would meet separately, except for bi-monthly joint sessions, and each would consist of twenty senators, elected by housing units.

Convo Features Meeting, Speech

Convocations for the coming week will feature student body meeting on Tuesday and the continuation of the "space" series on Thursday.

Tuesday's meeting will present the new reapportionment bill before the student body. The controversy which has been carried on in the senate and their ideas will be given to the students.

Dr. Paul A. Schilpp is the speaker for Thursday and will talk on the "Ethical Implications of the Space Age." Dr. Schilpp is the editor of the "Library of Living Philosophers."

His speech will reflect upon the earlier convocations devoted to the "space" series.

Also on Tuesday, Charles McMillan of the Neighborhood Center in Waterloo will speak on the tutoring program sponsored by the Social Action Commission.

Sexton explained that this plan is nearly identical to one on which he has been working, and "the differences are very minor." Some areas in the new constitution are open to question, he said, but the "structure" of the Ahrens-Zola Plan is very satisfactory.

This structure would incorporate Men's Coordinating Board into the "men's senate" and Women's Judiciary Council into the "women's senate," making each a subcommittee of its respective senate, responsible only for disciplinary problems.

"This relieves MCB and WJC of legislative duties and such things as running the dorms," said Sexton.

A further change is the addition of a "secretariat" to handle secretarial duties for the student body government. This group would consist of six to eight persons, chosen by the student body secretary, and paid under the work-study program.

Will Increase Efficiency

"This is certain to increase the efficiency of student body government," commented Sexton, who explained that the burden of routine duties such as these has prevented efficient operation of the present system.

Sexton listed "efficiency" as a primary goal of the reorganization effort, together with "better communication, better representation and more students working in the government."

The increased size of senate will improve its efficiency, he said, as its duties will be more widely distributed and not placed on the shoulders of "a few," as in the present system.

In addition, this distribution of duties will also simplify the task of each position, "so that the average student can come into a position, understand it and run it efficiently."

"We need to simplify the government so that the average student can run it," said Sexton.

"We are not getting the best kind of people in the government, because the good students are more concerned about their studies. Therefore, we must arrange the government so that the average student can efficiently assume the responsibility."

Another proposal endorsed by Sexton is the addition of a "public relations director" to keep the students informed of senate activities. This person would supply information to the Trumpet and KWAR, thereby narrowing the present communications gap between the senate and students.

He is "skeptical," however, (See APPORTIONMENT p. 8)

Castle Singers Present Skit For Luther League Confab

The Castle Singers will present a musical production at the Luther League Convention of the American Lutheran Church in Dallas, Texas, on Saturday, Aug. 12.

"The convention committee of Luther League has invited the Castle Singers to do a production of an original musical," said Dr. James Fritschel, director of the Castle Singers.

The musical to be performed is a contemporary "Children's Progress" tentatively entitled,

"What is the Meaning of This," by Richard Wilson, according to Dr. Fritschel.

Wilson wrote the musical review, "A Few Skits and Songs on Things Right and Wrong with the World, Church and You," which the Castle Singers performed this fall.

The Luther League Convention will be held from August 12-17. The Castle Singers will present the musical on the opening evening of the convention.

80 Scholarships Are Available To Students

According to Mrs. Hertlein, Director of Financial Aids, "Eighty scholarships are being offered for next year for which only 54 applications have been made. This means virtually 26 scholarships go unclaimed."

Deadline for application is next Wednesday, Feb. 15. Application blanks may be picked up from and returned by that time to Mrs. Hertlein's office.

The 80 available grants include assistance from the Wartburg Women's Club, class scholarships and many special scholarships.

If they go unclaimed, the money will go into a general education fund.

Scholarships will be granted only to students who have made application.

A three-point grade average is the minimum requirement for a scholarship award.

Half the scholarship will be applied each semester.

A student may receive only one major scholarship in any one year, except for music students who may receive special music scholarships in addition to other scholarships for which they may be eligible. A major scholarship is one of $100 or more.

Holders of minor Regent awards may make application for other upperclass scholarships.

Discussion Is For Freshmen

Tomorrow at 11:15 a.m. in the T.V. room there will be a discussion especially for the freshmen entitled, "Can You Trust the Bible?"

Dr. Johnson of the Religion Department will enumerate some historical answers to the problem of inspiration and will give his own reaction. The discussion will then be opened to students.

Are We Coming Of Age?

There used to be a time, so history books tell us, when marriage was the answer for two people in love, when war was justifiable, when becoming an adult meant being qualified to vote. Those were the good old days.

When the poor were poor and there was no sense in trying to improve their condition. When the colored people were discriminated against, but no one really cared because there was nothing to do about it anyway. That was just the way things were.

But today, yes, that is a different story. Today we worry about sexual compatibility and intellectual agreement between two people who consider marriage.

Worry About War

We worry about the South Vietnamese and the North Vietnamese AND the Americans fighting a war we can neither explain nor justify. We worry about the underprivileged and give our time, lives and money to try to help them.

We are quick to criticize and impatient with those who are not willing to give up the good old days. We know what's wrong with the world and we want to change it, but we do not want to wait for this change to happen. We want it now.

Letters To The Editor

Church Tie Is Questioned

To the editor:

"A student entering Wartburg can look forward to an adventure in community, a liberating experience that will spur him to ask questions, to voice opinions, to extend his vision, to uncover meaning, . . . to develop a personal philosophy of life, including a sense of values." This quotation states Wartburg's purpose as set forth in the Wartburg catalog.

This, for me, is exactly what I expect to gain upon entering any institution of higher learning. But, Wartburg cannot fulfill this purpose because of a financial tie to the Lutheran Church.

We live in a secular world in which we have a choice of accepting or denouncing religion. Assuming that the individual accepts religion, it must still be understood that he lives in a secular world. Religion does not contain a set of values, but it does contain guide lines for setting one's values.

Must Accept Change

If Wartburg is to follow its purpose, it must be willing to accept change and readily institute change. After many hours of discussion with faculty and administration, I truly believe Wartburg realizes its purpose. All it needs now is the courage to stand on its own two feet.

Wartburg is no longer the infant it was in 1885. It no longer needs nursing from the Lutheran Church which is so reluctant to accept change in a greatly changing society.

This church restricted Wartburg when it was willing to change

'Kids' In Convo Spoil Program

To the editor:

LET THERE BE LIGHT . . . and there was . . . all kinds of it during Tuesday's convocation presented by the Chicago Contemporary Dance Theatre.

Tardy students and fugitives from Oppie's camera kept the doors noisily swinging, casting beams of light here and there to disrupt the artists on stage and the interested members of the audience.

Students have complained that convos are boring and dull, but, given the opportunity on Tuesday to witness a truly tremendous program, what do they do, but display their irresponsibility and discourtesy.

Throughout the performance the doors were continually opened and closed. Convocation is publicized enough in advance to give students and faculty forewarning.

The Chapel auditorium on Tuesday was a theater which "kids" nonchalantly entered at all hours of the performance just to be there. Too bad!

--Susan M. Radig

Several magazines, Time in particular, have dealt with this subject and I cannot presume to be able to do justice to it, but my primary concern is that we are a part of this, whether we are fully conscious of it or not.

We Are Involved

One glance at the letters to the editor in this issue should suffice to show how involved we are in this business of coming of age. We are no longer satisfied with glib answers or trite explanations.

So we take these matters seriously, perhaps too seriously. This, again, concerns us to a great extent.

My question is, then, can we take ourselves and our world too seriously? Can we get bogged down in an objective analysis of everything we do? Where can we draw the line between being concerned and being too critical?

Our society forces us to come of age, to face life as it really is. We can either adjust to this, rebel against it (by remaining romantic and practical) or simply say, "I don't really give a damn."

Our country, our world is changing and we are a part of it. We now have to decide what we are going to do with it.

its policy on dancing. This restriction cost the college many years in its quest for progress. If Wartburg is to maintain pace with society, it cannot allow itself to fall into the pit of cultural lag which engulfs the Lutheran Church at this present time.

All of the preceding was merely an introduction to an issue which I am deeply committed to. An issue that is so large that its ramifications can be seen in all areas of society. This being the acceptance of the drinking of alcoholic beverages.

This task is not as large as it may seem for it is not really the acceptance of this act, but the recognition of this act that has been going on for centuries.

Promotes Fellowship

At the present time there is an organization whose purpose it is to promote Christian fellowship, scholarship, student-faculty relationships and community responsibility.

The name of this club is the Friday Afternoon Club, and it does indulge in the consumption of the previously mentioned commodity, although it is not a requirement for membership. This club is at present making plans to submit a constitution to the faculty - student council which, if passed, will allow it to become a member of the Wartburg family.

I feel that this club is offering Wartburg College a great opportunity to stand on its own two feet and fully support its purpose. Wartburg must accept this opportunity and be willing to suffer the consequences. If it does not, it will surely fall short of its purpose and join the Lutheran Church in an unnecessary period of cultural lag.

Defense Of Colloquium Justified By Reader

To the editor:

I read with extreme interest in last week's Trumpet the letter from Mr. Rachut concerning the Honors Program. Perhaps first, before I begin, I should qualify my position: I personally am not associated with the program, nor do I have any desire to be.

I do not consider myself qualified intellectually, I do not have the extra time to spare and, lastly, my GPA would not even get me past the door.

I cannot, however, accept several of the points enumerated in Mr. Rachut's letter, and I further believe that the bulk of them are basically and intrinsically unsound and therefore untenable.

It is my understanding (please correct me if it is otherwise) that the Honors Program was instituted in part for the purpose of bringing together students on a relatively informal basis with their instructors, that they might explore areas otherwise not touched upon in their classroom work, that they might on a civil level discuss these topics and from it gain further insight into such issues as might present themselves.

Grades Are Resurrected

The perennial issue of grades is again resurrected from its dusty tomb of tradition. Speaking again for myself, I have always been of the conviction that grades measure (subject to the judgment of the instructor) the actual performance and progress achieved by the student.

If an honor student does, alas, receive a B or a C, yes, even a D, then it is a reflection, not on the grading procedure of the instructor, nor the competency of that instructor, NOR the selection of the student for the program, but on the performance and progress of the student himself.

That this program should be restricted to 4.0 students only, under a special honors curriculum, with specially selected instructors to administer it, would in my opinion be intellectually ineffective, inconclusive and generally irrelevant to the students concerned.

Program Is Achievement

That there even is an honors program at Wartburg is an achievement; if it is "undemocratic," perhaps this is due to the fact that education as a whole is in itself highly undemocratic.

For a student enrolled in the Honors Program to be either guaranteed or expected to produce a 4.0 average because of his enrollment would be a gross injustice both to the student himself and the rest of the student body.

If that were the case, I would be totally opposed to the program, as I assume Mr. Rachut is now, although I certainly do commend him on his GPA. Enough said for now.

Senate Commissioner Seeks More Responsible Students

To the editor:

Last week I wrote a letter to the faculty and administration. This week I am writing one to the student body.

As many of you know, it is my duty as Student Services Commissioner to carry out projects of Student Senate. This I do to the best of my ability for both the student body and the Student Senate.

The project that I am about to speak of is the Senate Book Sale. I will first present to you two facts: (1) we were $30 short, and (2) there were approximately twelve books taken.

Now, what do these facts mean to YOU, the student body? First of all, the money that we were short was the fault of myself, my co-workers and yourselves.

Dime Is Charged

We charge a dime--ten cents--to have a book placed into the sale. For those of you who don't know why this is done, the dimes are used to pay for the cards, tape, poster board and other miscellaneous equipment needed to run this sale.

Through them, we are also able to cover the cost of any books that do get taken. How many of YOU paid your dimes? You may have counted yourself lucky, or you may just have forgotten.

In either case, that cost YOU money. Senate has to pay for it--you have to pay for Senate.

Stolen Books Cost $50

Let me now discuss the second fact that I have given to you for thought--the one about the taken books. We will have to pay almost $50 or $60 for these books; again, you the students have to pay for it. Remember, some students are getting their books free at your expense.

How about helping yourselves and me in making for a more responsible student body? There are some of you who helped run the book sale; to you--thanks. But to those who didn't help, how about it?

Help curb the number of stolen books, and next time pay your dime. It all helps and all starts with you, the student body.

--Sophomore Senator
Terry Sexton

Discourtesy Is Reprimanded

To the editor:

This is in answer to a letter in last week's Trumpet assessing the values of the Wartburg Honors Program.

I have no counter arguments to this letter, partly because it would only add fuel to the fire and partly because I don't feel like arguing.

I feel very sick when I see people throwing mud at college officials merely for the target practice. It would be nice if value judgments appeared to be as clear-cut as stated in the letter.

Oh, if life were so easy.

In any case, the voice of reason must prevail in our judgments. It would appear that last week's critique of the Honors Program is a sour grapes verdict, conceived in haste and filled with emotive remarks.

I will always remember the advice of my wise father which I think is applicable here: "It is better to be courteous than to be right."

Perhaps some have forgotten about the first attribute?

Pep Band Member Blames Cheerers

To the editor:

At last Saturday's basketball game there was a noticeable absence of the "Loyalty Song" until after much waiting on the part of the student body.

I would like to take the opportunity to state the position of the pep band.

Before the game began, the cheerleaders came upstairs and requested that we not play the "Loyalty Song" if the basketball team won. Their reasons were that the student body did not like standing around for such a slow song.

Well, once more the cheerleaders read the crowd reactions wrong. The students just stood there after the fight song waiting for the "Loyalty Song."

This has happened more than once in my four years at Wartburg, but in these other instances the cheerleaders took the blame for their errors.

But when the cheerleaders stand down on the gym floor also waiting for the "Loyalty Song" it is just too much. Here they ask not for it to be played and then they stand like innocent lambs before the crowd.

I would like to have the cheerleaders stand up and be counted as the culprits.

'Project Water' Needs Support

To the editor:

For the past two months a few members of the student body have been working on the swimming pool project and have received very little response from the student body as a whole. It seems to have slipped a lot of people's minds.

Today we have $20,400 in pledges and about $3,500 in cash. The goal we must achieve by May 30, is $100,000 in cash. So what must we do to obtain such a large amount?

'Can't' Is No Word

First, we, the students of Wartburg, must get the idea out of our heads that we can't possibly get such a large amount in such a short time. Remember that there is no such word as "can't" until you are six feet under ground.

Second, we must show a little initiative and get out to the people that want to help make the project a success. We must go to the people of Waverly or our home towns because they surely aren't coming to us. After all, we are the ones who want the pool and voted for it.

Be Willing To Give

Third, and most important of all, we must have faith and pride in what we are doing and in order to have this, we must be willing to give a little of our time and effort to accomplishing the mission we set out to do.

Remember the statement made by President Kennedy, "Ask not what your country can do for you, but ask what you can do for your country." In this case, ask what you can do for Wartburg College.

So what must we do? Fire up and make our swimming pool project a success. Support "Project Water."

Studying In Bonn, Germany Is Rewarding Experience

Studying for a year in Germany at the University of Bonn is "one of the best opportunities to get to know Europeans as people," according to Roberta Getzloff.

Roberta, a senior, was a Bonn exchange student last year. She, together with seniors Connie Meyer and Katie Maahs, attended classes at the university for the full two semesters.

"We Americans often hear vague misconceptions about Europeans, but by actually studying, traveling, living and having fun with Europeans a lot of these are cleared up," Roberta explained.

"I, myself, was made more aware of what is going on in the world. By being there I had the chance to see and hear more than just one side of any one world situation.

"Also, because when I traveled I became aware that many of the things I had heard about weren't always as I had imagined them to be. Some things were awe-inspiring, others were simply disappointing because they weren't as I had imagined them to be."

Lives In Dorm

Roberta lived in Dietrich Bonhoeffer Haus, a dormitory sponsored by the Protestant Church in Germany.

During semester vacations (the educational system allows for seven months of classes and five months of vacation) Roberta made extensive tours through Europe.

"My longest trip was to Italy for three weeks on a guided tour. This was primarily of cultural benefit, for I could see the things I had been studying about in history and art courses," she remarked.

"I also traveled through Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg on one trip. While I was in Rotterdam I was lucky enough to meet a girl from South Africa at a youth hostel.

"She was, and still is, on her way to Japan. The last letter I got from her, she said she had just finished three months of school in Portugal. The two of us traveled on through Belgium and Luxembourg. From there I continued on alone to Great Britain for two weeks.

Goes To Major Cities

"Of course, I got to see the major cities of Germany, too. I will never forget the German people; they were always willing to help. Once you get to know them they are very friendly, but on the surface they appear more sophisticated, shall we say, and cold.

"This tendency becomes very apparent during Carnival time, which just ended in Germany. Carnival is a celebration somewhat like the Mardi Gras. It officially begins on the eleventh hour of the eleventh month and culminates on Ash Wednesday.

"The last four days before Ash Wednesday are the gayest. A lot of private parties are given and everybody enjoys himself and lets himself go.

"By the way, this is the only time of the year when strangers will use the personal form of the word 'you' to each other.

"The celebration is like our Halloween and everybody dresses up in costumes. Many of the people spend hours, even days, preparing their costumes for Carnival.

Parades Are Satirical

"On the Sunday before Ash Wednesday traditional parades are held that are satirical towards local politics. On 'Rosenmontag,' the following Monday, larger Carnival parades are held and here they satirize world politics," Roberta continued.

Individual departments of the university also have parties to which only students are invited.

In comparing German education with ours, Roberta commented that "the Germans give their students more credit as mature students. Everything isn't spelled out for them.

Education Is Advanced

"It also is a more advanced type of education, for by the time the students reach the university they are ready to specialize. In their what we would call high school they study general subjects.

"To be sure, the student body is a more select group and a large percentage of young people are ineligible to attend a university. In this sense their system is not as fair as ours," she concluded.

To apply for the Bonn exchange program students must first pass an oral and written exam conducted here by the Committee on Student Exchange Programs. Once the students reach Germany they must again take a German proficiency test which is also both oral and written.

According to Dr. Mahlon H. Hellerich, Dean of Faculty, interested students are invited to discuss the program with him.

Student Explains Den Photograph

To the editor:

I would like to correct a wrong impression that was created by the caption that was run under Tim Schumacher's picture in the last issue.

Tim's singing was not supposed to be an impromptu "coffee-house," but was meant merely as informal entertainment for any students who may have wandered up by the Den after supper.

Ric Sundquist and I asked Tim to entertain a bit after it was decided that the snow party couldn't be held at the Outfly grounds.

Tim was kind enough to consent, and permission was received from both Mr. McClain and Mr. Levick. Unfortunately, the student help at the Den wasn't informed, and questioned Tim's right to sing.

There was some other entertainment lined up which would have been presented had more students been present. Lack of time prevented us from putting up any publicity to attract more students, however.

Problem Reappears

By DEAN KRUCKEBERG

It's going to be a good semester. So far my wingtips have rotted from fungus disease, I have developed a case of acne on my pubocutaneous emeraldus and my date for Snow Weekend came down with the rabies.

Kruckeberg

"Now I lay me down to sleep."

Cheer up! There will be rice on meatballs for breakfast. Then, when you have finished your repast, wipe your knife and fork off with a napkin (it saves washing) and give thanks to the petitioners that you can still keep your very own lunch ticket for another week.

Don't get me wrong. I'm not complaining. I'd just like to know how some of that stuff died. The other day I read in the newspaper about a terrible accident where a cattle truck got hit by a passenger train. This didn't particularly bother me, because no one was hurt.

But when I went to the caf that night I found a conductor's watch in my beef. The first time I stuck my fork into it, it died.

I wish they would be more specific about what they serve us. When the menu sheets say hot dogs, I'd like to know what kind: Cocker Spaniel, Collie or German Shepherd.

O. K., I'm being unfair, and I exaggerated a little. There are a lot of complaints about our food service, however. The cooks have a hard job to do, and they get little or no thanks for it. There is much misunderstanding between the cooks and the students. Some of the students' complaints are utterly ridiculous, but many of them are legitimate. The problem seems to be a lack of communication.

Variety Show Given

Junior Lyle Page looks on as senior Al Lyndrup plays dual roles as banjo player-bottle blower in the Wartburg College Concert Band's performances of "Band-Aid Follies" Thursday and Friday nights.

Late Wartburg Bid Fails; Take On Dutchmen Tonight

Wartburg dropped their fourth game of the Iowa Conference campaign as they fell to William Penn 59-51 last night in Oskaloosa.

The Statesmen employed a tight man to man defense to throttle the Knight attack. Close coverage by Penn's Steve Burton held the Knights' highest scorer, John Hearn of Racine, Wis., to only seven points for the evening.

At the same time Burton led all scorers with 19 points.

Only One Reaches 10

Wartburg only placed one man in double figures in the low scoring contest. Senior guard Gary Ludvigsen hit 11 points, most of them coming on fade away jump shots.

The Knights fell behind in the first half when freshman center G. E. Buening twisted his knee and went to the locker room to have it retaped. In the next few minutes Hearn picked up his third foul and was rested on the bench.

At half time the Knights had fallen ten points behind the Penn pace Wartburg was exceptionally cold in the closing minutes of the first half.

Press Is Effective

The Statesmen expanded their lead in the second half and at one time led by 16 points. With nine minutes left in the game Wartburg moved into a 2-2-1 press which stunned Penn momentarily.

The Knights were able to close the margin to six points in the late stages of the game.

The loss moves the Knights to a 6-4 loop record, and it probably cost the second place berth as Upper Iowa was entertained by lowly Simpson.

Coach Buzz Levick's squad snapped a three - game losing streak last weekend by dropping Simpson 84-73 and Buena Vista 60-48, but it wasn't the offense which carried the club.

Shooting Is In Slump

In neither case were the Knights able to get much above 30 per cent in shooting (34.1 against the Redmen and 33.3 against the Beavers).

"A shooting slump is all mental," Levick said Tuesday. "Some of our players have had bad games, and now every time they take a shot they think about it."

Levick again felt his club's defense was responsible for the two wins last weekend.

"We broke both games open in the middle of the second half," he said. The Knights outscored Simpson 22-4 over one five-minute stretch and Buena Vista 11-2 over another similar period.

Levick also lauded frosh center G. E. Buening, from Parkston, S. D., and reserve guard Steve Beckman, senior from Cedar Rapids, for their play last Saturday night against BV in a game which meant second place for both teams.

Cindermen Face First Test With 11 Veterans Returning

Friday afternoon the Knight cindermen faced their first test of the indoor season against Coe in Cedar Rapids. Wartburg will have 11 veterans returning to compete in the season opener.

Guiding the team again this year after a leave of absence to work on his doctorate at the University of Iowa, Dr. David Olson is optimistic about his team's chances.

"We have very good potential for a successful track program," he said. "We will rely on our veterans to carry the brunt of the attack, and we will fill in with promising newcomers."

Coe Meet Is Experimental

Olson refers to the Coe meet as an experiment. The Coe team has been improving in the past few years, as have the Knights. In last year's confrontation Wartburg was able to gain a 56-39 edge.

The thin-clads have only had ten days to prepare for this meet because the practice sessions were begun on Feb. 1. The team works out on the State College of Iowa indoor track as much as possible.

Face Tough Schedule

Wartburg will meet two of its toughest opponents in the indoor season. Olson ranks SCI and Mankato State as the two top teams the Knights will face. Competition with these two squads will be in triangular meets on March 1 and March 8.

The Knights will compete in the Iowa College Indoor at Cedar Falls on March 18 to round out the indoor season.

Indoor Program Is Vital

"We have more of an indoor program than most of the schools in the Iowa Conference," Dr. Olson commented. "We feel this has been instrumental in upgrading our track program."

Wartburg was tabbed as a contender for the loop title when the competition moves outside. Luther is expected to retain their fine balance and Central promises to be in the race for the title.

"We have more depth this year in some events than ever before," he added of his 35 man squad.

One Record Remains

Last season the Knights established six new records. With the addition of a new record in the 220 yard low hurdles, Wartburg could completely rewrite their record book since 1960. Senior Jack Fistler is expected to have a good shot at pushing the mark lower.

Four of the squad members are seniors. Fistler, Gaylen Fick, Jerry Meister and Laird Yock will be competing for the last time this year.

"They have been second in the conference for three years," Olson remarked. "We expect them to help us elude the bridesmaid position and move up."

Things Look Better!

By JOHN MOYERS

Now that Snow Weekend is over, and everyone is battling a good case of frost bite or a plain old common cold, let's sort of look at sports.

Moyers

The basketball team got back into its winning ways with a couple of wins last weekend, and the wrestlers beat Simpson, so we may be able to say that things are looking better with the start of the new semester out of the way.

Things are looking so much better, in fact, that if "Old Ease" comes through with a few baskets this weekend, there will be a group of fellows who will be a little under the weather.

The Wartburg Players have a few new recruits during the late afternoon hours just about every weekday. They also brought a few props along with them. I imagine that this was just to insure their right to be in the Little Theatre instead of out in the cold. It won't be long now, men.

Dr. Olson seems to have quite a flock out for track this year. I happened to walk through the gym the other day, much to Mr. Kurtt's dismay, and thought that we were starting spring football.

Then I noticed that Menage didn't have his Bear Bryant book in his hand, and I immediately decided that since he was holding a sprint schedule, it had to be the track team.

*****

We have quite a few personalities out for Munsingwear's favorite sport this year (track). Mr. Track and Field is back to retain his conference high jump title along with Happy Jack in the sprints. Of course, the mild-mannered miler, "Dirty John" Thieman, is back to run the 880 and the mile.

Mr. Cool has even picked up a pair of shoes for his return to the cinders. Jerry hasn't been out since he was a freshman, and-- catch this--he runs the 440 and the 880. This will be quite a change, since his normal spring is from the Dent to the Game Room, and that can't be over 35 yards.

Another surprise runner this year is Ken Melhus. With this group out on the track. I think that we may say that FAC's loss is Coach Olson's gain.

A couple of forecasts for the up and coming Luther game: First of all, the Knights are going to come out on top victorious. The student body will be there in a large abundance and make more noise than ever before, is my second prediction (G III has been invited to the game along with its head cheerleader, Ray Narducy).

A word of warning should be extended to the visitors: Lyle Page is back, so please try to stay away from the Wartburg Pep Band's base drum, or don't you remember what happened two years ago?

Hearn Is Loop Rebounding Ace, Boasts 21 Point Scoring Average

By ED ROACH

John Hearn is a name that seems to be popping up everywhere in recent weeks. He is listed in three separate categories on the Iowa Conference charts and as top scorer in nearly every Wartburg basketball game.

With impressive credentials in the Iowa loop such as top rebounder, Trirdin's scoring and only slightly down the line from two of his teammates in free-throw shooting percentage, it is no wonder that the W-Club selected him as their athlete of the month.

The "Pretty Boy" immortalized on the Ketha House trash can is hardly a fitting tribute to a junior who has developed into a well-rounded ball player in his three seasons at Wartburg.

Average Is Surprise

"I didn't expect to have a 20.8 average in scoring at the beginning of the season, but I could always rebound pretty well," Hearn remarked.

John has adopted all of the traditional rebounding tricks as well as adding a few innovations of his own. Among these, finding your man and screening him off the board, remain the most important.

"I've always been an elbow thrower, but I've tried to watch it this year," John remarked coyly.

Regardless of what the rule books say, the well placed elbow is still one of the basic tools of any basketball player. This year a new rule which could remove a player from the game has hampered Hearn in exercising mastery in the art.

Refs Allow Pushing

The officials have been aiding the shorter men like Hearn, who stands six feet-three inches, by a more liberal attitude toward under-board pushing.

A major draw-back to Hearn's game as listed in the Winter Press Book was the fact that he was weak on his drive-shots. In this seasons action this softly veiled fear has been assuaged.

"When I left last year the coach said I would have to drive," Hearn said. "I worked on it this summer. In our new offense you have to drive to score, and I think it is the reason I have been hitting more."

In both games against Buena Vista the tight zone has held Hearn to only 13 points. John says he is satisfied to be tightly covered as long as the Knights manage to win.

The zone defense reminded John of his high school days in Racine, Wis., where he became used to this style of play. Hearn says he still feels that he can hit a higher percentage of his outside sniping.

With the rest of the team suffering from a shooting slump, Hearn has retained his high shooting average.

Team Spirit Slips

"There has been a little less determination on the team since the semester break," Hearn remarked. "Now everyone is firing up because we have a chance to go to the NAIA tournament in Kansas City."

First shots in a game are critical to Hearn. If the first three of four shots are off target, John says he takes it out on himself. Advice and encouragement from assistant coach John Kurtt guide him through these early dry spells until the ball slashes the net.

"It's a matter of making the first one; after that I can relax," Hearn commented.

UIC Loss Is Critical

John points to the home-court loss to Upper Iowa as the most critical game of the season thus far.

"Now we have to win every game to go to the tournament," Hearn said.

Personnel-wise the Knights have the players to match Upper Iowa at every position except Crabtree. In the game at Fayette Hearn said he would have to let Upper Iowa take the proverbial ten point home court advantage.

"In the first game I lost all respect for their coach Stan Jack," Hearn said. "He was on me the whole game after I had a fight with Crabtree."

Road Trip Important

This weekend is a critical factor in the Knights' season record. Hearn is the first to realize this truth. He points to the fact that Central has yet to lose one on their home court this year, and the fact that William Penn failed to live up to their advanced billing when they played in Waverly.

Turning to the rematch with Luther and the pivotal game in the minds of most Knights fans, Hearn said, "Buzz said he'll never quit coaching at Wartburg until we beat them, and I feel much the same way."

Leading the conference in rebounds forward John Hearn tries for another one in last Saturday's altercation with Buena Vista.

Frosh Stop Buena Vista

In last Saturday night's game against Buena Vista the Freshman Squires played one of their better games of the year. The Squires were sparked by the fine shooting and rebounding of Jim Barkema and Rich Mauer. Barkema scored 22 points and grabbed rebounds off the boards while Mauer poured through 22 points and captured 22 rebounds.

Freshman Coach John Kurtt was pleased with their performance, but attributes their 82-49 victory to their strong rebounding ability.

Kurtt said, "Buena Vista played well but they didn't provide much competition. They lost a big boy, Arnie Johnson, at semester. We just held the ball against the zone to make them come out and play with us."

Grapplers Down Simpson 29-9, Have Top Meet In Westmar

Wartburg's wrestlers travel to the Lutheran Tournament at Decorah today to face some of their roughest competition of the year.

Grappling mentor Kaye Young picks Augustana of Rock Island to provide the class of the meet. Wartburg defeated the Auggies 16-15 in a dual meet earlier in the season.

Also in contention for the team title on the basis of their last year's performance will be Concordia, Gustavus Adolphus and Luther.

In addition to these teams Augsburg, Augustana of Sioux Falls, Dana, Carthage, St. Olaf and Wartburg will be represented at the tournament.

Knights Down Simpson

Tuesday the Knights downed a weak Simpson team 29-9.

"We had a very average performance against Simpson," Young commented. "We're so young we get these up and down periods. They were let down after Westmar and looking forward to the Lutheran Tournament."

In the match freshman Gene Baker posted his first win of the season. Young said he hoped it would give the young matman some more confidence.

Henn Gets Fall

Wartburg also managed to gain four falls in the Simpson confrontation. Freshmen Dave Henn and Tom Turner both pinned their men, being followed by sophomores Al Mohr and Dean Knight with 177 and 191 class pins.

The Knights displayed the best of their skills in their 19-15 match with nationally-ranked Westmar before an enthusiastic Snow Weekend crowd.

Young said, "I'm sure it wasn't a peak performance for Westmar. They beat us so badly last year maybe they weren't mentally prepared."

The Knights got started when Henn scored the meet's only pin over Dennis Nixt. Last year Nixt had been runner-up in the Iowa High School Tournament.

Streak Of 45 Broken

Sophomore Mick Ketchum ended a 45-match winning streak for the Warrior Captain Roger Trulock in a 7-6 decision.

Young said that Larry Kinsinger of Ottumwa and Dean Knight of Fairbank both "showed courage and spirit" in their losing efforts.

At 177 Al Mohr saw action despite a painful knee injury. Mohr reinjured his knee in the match but was able to continue after being reinforced with tape.

"We really hadn't planned to use him, but when we had a chance to win the meet we decided to use him," Young commented. "His knee is still sore and bothering him some, but he needs competition to get him ready for the conference tournament."

The Thousandth Way

U. S. Immaturity Is Seen

By AL SAGERT

(Editor's Note: Al Sagert is presently studying at the University of Bonn, Germany, as an exchange student.)

When one gets away from the bustle and constant drive of American living and observes our buckskin-covered society from outside the immediate sphere emanating from Washington, one sees the immaturity that we still possess as a government and a people.

We make it very difficult for our allies to be our friends. Any German will admit that we are the most powerful nation in the world, but he does not speak of this as an eternal state of affairs as many Americans think it naturally is.

It does not prevent him from feeling hurt and rebellious when we treat his nation like a child or an unranked private who must obey commands unquestioningly.

For instance, with the complete disarmament of Germany by the Allies following WW II and in looking back over the events of the war, the German people developed an attitude of distaste for all things military.

Then in 1950, they were suddenly called upon by the United States to found an army and contribute to the defense against the Soviets. This they did with reluctance, rationalization and economic and emotional difficulty.

They now have 440,000 men under arms, which is the largest force in Western Europe, far more than the American (221,000) or British (55,000).

In addition, at the insistence of McNamara and other U. S. officials, they have kept this army well-equipped by buying tanks and modern equipment from the Americans.

* * *

Now in this age of potential atomic attacks, of the "Big Lift" of armed forces by air instead of the standing army on-the-scene and of the somewhat softened Russian approach, the question has been raised concerning the purpose of this West German force.

The Germans feel themselves left in the lurch by a U. S. government which is looking toward the Asiatic scene in sudden awareness of its responsibility (or possible gain?) there at the expense of its European allies.

An example is the economic drain of the A-bombless Bundeswehr millstone which we have prodded the Germans to create and now have deprived of any meaningful function.

The F-104G Starfighter has turned out to be another of our mistakes costly to the Germans. Our Defense Department along with the then German Minister of Defense, Franz Joseph-Strauss, selected it as THE plane for the German air force.

* * *

This Mach-2 jet is designed to serve as multi-purpose reconnaissance, interceptor and nuclear-bombing craft. It is a speedy, complicated and "unforgiving" aircraft.

With proper mechanic and pilot training, it can be safely flown—but the Germans before 1958 had never been in the jet big time, and the Starfighter is no child's first primer.

As a result, the Germans have lost 63 of approximately 700 aircraft and 35 men. And if this is not pain enough, we have also deprived the F-104 of its nuclear role.

The Germans could have chosen a cheaper, better-suited and safer single-purpose aircraft if they had been better advised by us or had been able to foresee our fickleness.

The purposeless Bundeswehr, the personnel problems it has caused and the expensive blunder of the "Flying Coffin" have all contributed to the present collapse of Erhard's ruling majority in Germany, along with a host of interior problems and Erhard's own mismanagement.

But it must be rather disheartening for a condemned man to see his "friends" contributing lumber for his scaffold.

JOAN BIASED LAMENTS—
WHAT $6.32 DID FOR MANKIND

Ever since my prodigious childhood, I have been a student of the harp. Since Father is a foremost contra bassoonist and Mother a bass violist, they dreamed of my becoming a virtuoso with the philharmonic. It seemed inevitable until I noticed a bulletin in the music school announcing tryouts for campus talent night. Here would be an opportunity to expose one of my original soul-searching compositions. When the big night finally arrived, I called for a cab to transport my 85 lb. instrument. The driver sympathetically explained it would cost a $6.32 drayage fee. I had not a penny in my leotards, but tucked under my babushka was my Special Student Checkbook. In eyebrow pencil I wrote a check for $6.32 and my troubles were over and victory mine. Besides winning the competition, I've signed a contract with Barefoot Records for my first LP. It's to be called, "Joan Biased sings, Medical drugs may be good for mankind, but germs have feelings, too."

If taxi fees are a problem for you, why not do what so many other music majors are doing—come in and open your Special Student checking account. It only takes a few minutes and very little cash. It's all so easy you'll wonder why you don't switch to Business Administration.

Film Critique

'Orpheus' Movie Theme Is Death

By CAROL BECKER

"Orpheus," written and directed by the French author Jean Cocteau, was presented as the first film of the second semester English Film Series.

"Orpheus" is an adaption of the Greek legend of Orpheus and Eurydice. In the film Orpheus is a successful and envied poet, coveted by his own Death in the form of a beautiful Princess whose agents are uniformed motorcyclists and an obedient chauffeur named Heurtibise.

In the beginning Death takes the life of a young and popular poet, Cegeste, who has recently threatened the fame of Orpheus. Subsequently, Orpheus becomes entranced by the mysterious poetic messages he receives by short-wave radio.

These messages are transmitted by the "dead" Cegeste, under the explicit orders of the Princess. Death has begun to control Orpheus, and, because she covets him, she takes the life of his wife, Eurydice.

Goes To Underworld

Orpheus travels to the Underworld, presumably to seek his wife, but he also seeks Death, whom he has begun to "love and desire." Orpheus is reunited with his wife on the condition that he should never again look upon her.

In a moment of weakness, however, he violates the condition, and Eurydice returns to the Land of the Dead. Soon afterwards, Orpheus is killed by an angry mob.

He meets the Princess in the Underworld, and passionately embraces her, for she personifies the death that he has sought to understand and experience. In spite of her love for him, however, the Princess of Death returns Orpheus to life for the sake of his immortality.

Orpheus and Eurydice find themselves back in their home, happy as one is upon waking from a bad dream and finding that none of what was imagined is true.

Death Is Theme

Orpheus' experience with death is the main theme of the movie. He became acquainted with the Princess, that is Death, through the death of the younger poet Cegeste, but he did not understand her until he ventured into the Underworld himself.

There he found a no-man's land of darkened ruins where aimless figures wandered. He found that death does not answer all of man's questions, that it does not consider circumstances in its judgments, and that ultimately no power but power itself controls death.

The Princess herself was a subordinate in the world of Hades. Orpheus had begun to understand death, but he was mortal and had to return to life. He found it impossible, however, to live in knowledge of life and death.

He understood death and desired to return to it. This was symbolized by his love for the Princess and by his inability to live up to the conditions under which he was forced to live with Eurydice.

Mob Kills Orpheus

Orpheus died at the hand of a hateful mob, but the love of Death sent him back to life for the sake of his immortality. Perhaps it was important for the poet to understand immortality in order to be a great poet, or perhaps Orpheus could not die a declining poet if he were to become immortally famous.

In either case, Orpheus would have been left with his great talent. His experience would serve only to make him greater.

On the other hand, it is possible that Orpheus had lost his ability to be a great poet. Perhaps he was only left with a love for life and the ability to live a conventional existence.

In the end Orpheus and Eurydice seem to have forgotten their experience with death, and are left with nothing but a greater awareness of life.

These questions are difficult to answer, even in relationship to the original myth. According to the Greek legend, Orpheus was able to sing until his death, but his beautiful voice was drowned out by the screams of angry women, and he was killed.

Perhaps this indicates that Orpheus had lost his charm, and perhaps this is the point of the movie as well as the myth.

Apportionment Is Changed

about the senate reapportionment, which would elect senators by housing units, as this system could "fill the senate with inexperienced freshmen and sophomores."

May Be Inexperienced

Since underclassmen outnumber juniors and seniors by a considerable margin, he explained, a senate apportioned by population and housing units could possibly become filled with inexperience.

"Election by housing units is necessary," he continued, "but the exact formula must yet be worked out," and it must avoid the danger of allowing a large number of underclassmen into the senate.

Present plans are to apportion each senate body on the basis of one senator for every thirty students in each housing unit. This is a preliminary estimate which assumes that there are about six hundred men students and six hundred women, presently enrolled in the college.

"The fifty men in North Hall, for example, would probably elect two senators," explained Sexton, "as they are but ten short of the necessary sixty residents, and the dorm has two floors.

Off-Campus Elects Delegation

"Off-campus housing will elect its own delegation, and off-campus houses, such as Vollmer, Cotta, and Ketha, will each elect one senator, or they will combine to elect one if they are geographically near each other, as in the case of Cotta and Ketha."

Sexton emphasized that the exact formula for apportionment is not yet determined and will require close study before adoption into the constitution. Present proposals are very tentative, he said.

Sexton was also skeptical of the "power structure" which would be included in the new system, as the plan would give the student body president more power and responsibility, especially in the area of appointments.

"It will be a type of spoils system," he said, "but with more responsibilities given the president. He must have power, so this is difficult to avoid.

Candidate To Be Responsible

Sexton indicated that "an inefficient president can be prodded by the joint senate, since it will have considerable power, but the best way to avoid this situation would be for the student body to elect a responsible candidate.

"This is a new type of student government," he continued, "and the students will have to back it up if it is to succeed."

The students will be given more responsibility in running their government, he said, and they must take it seriously. Should they have any question concerning these new problems, their senators are ready to clarify the issues.

"The new constitution will be submitted to the student body for a vote within two to four weeks, and if it is accepted, the new system will go into effect immediately," said Sexton.

"Therefore the students should become aware of the constitution and what the issue involves."

If the constitution is adopted, he concluded, the senate would devote the remainder of the year to amending, revising and perfecting it, in preparation for its first full year of application, beginning this fall.

Caf Ticket Plans Are Postponed

The meal ticket plan as announced by the Food Service earlier this week has been postponed. The plan had set forth a new procedure with handling meal tickets, but the heated response of students forced the postponement of the measure.

Now that the question has been temporarily settled, the responsibility of finding a feasible alternative has fallen into the hands of the students.

A meeting of the Cafeteria Committee will be held this Wednesday, Feb. 15, in the Castle room. In addition, the student Senate, in its regular meeting this Monday night, will take up the matter.

Students who have alternative proposals should plan to attend either or both of the meetings. If this is not possible, students are urged to see a member of the Cafeteria Committee.

Fusarium, Typhula Become Problems

By DEAN KRUCKEBERG

"Fusarium and typhula, species of fungi, are becoming a serious problem this year," according to Joe Meyers, Grounds Superintendent of Wartburg College.

"The girls are the chief offenders," he said, "but the boys aren't much better."

Meyers explained, "The students do not seem to realize the harm they are doing to the campus lawn by campus-cutting, or else they just don't care.

"We're spending a fortune on fertilizer and lawn care needs," he said. "It won't do any good if everyone continues to campus-cut, though. When students cut campus, they pack the snow down so hard that ideal conditions are produced for snow mold disease to infect the grass."

Lawn Is Damaged

The campus lawn, which lies dormant during the winter months, is severely damaged when people scuff out the grass at a time when the plants cannot repair themselves.

"The main problem areas are by the south doors of Hebron and Vollmer Halls," Meyers said. "Paths have also developed from Luther Hall to Knights Gymnasium."

"It wouldn't be so bad if just one or two people cut campus," he said, "but when one person makes a path through the snow, everyone else follows it. It becomes so matted down that the maintenance crew can't do anything about it.

Crews Put In Time, Effort

"It is really discouraging to see this happen after the campus crews put in so much time and effort to keep a beautiful campus."

Even individual footprints in the snow can do harm to the turf. Perhaps the students can remember the footprints etched into the grass near the dorms last spring. These were caused by careless students the winter before. Continuation of the practice of campus-cutting will only increase the problem.

The students are the ones who lose. A campus which is made up of dead, fungus-infested grass is not very beautiful.
